the Keck-Gonnerman Thresher

. . . for 75 years the Farmer's Dependable Friend!

Almost four decades of experience in building dependable equipment for farmers has been put into the construction of the new Keck-Gonnerman Thresher . . . with the result that this thresher has exclusive construction features which are readily appreciated by the experienced farmer.

Study These Exclusive Advantages:

- 12 foot feeder carriers that are adjustable to any desired height from 36" to 74" merely by turning an adjusting crank.
- Feeder governed by fly-ball speed governor and volume control governor.
- All necessary adjustments for good threshing can be made while machine is in operation.
- Furnished with 12 bar cylinders on 28x48 and smaller machines and 15 bar cylinders on 28x50 and larger machines.
- Cylinder and blower shaft mounted on double row, self-aligning ball bearings.
- Equipped with 2 beaters for more efficient operation.

- Six rows of steel lifting fingers operate up and down 215 times per minute while the rack moves back and forth at the same speed. The fingers toss the straw upward, tear it apart, and shake out any remaining grain.
- Heavily constructed channel and angle-iron frame put together with hot rivets. Frame will remain rigid after years of use.
- Blower shaft equipped with bull horns placed in position to auger and force a steady stream of straw into the blower. Practically impossible to choke blower.
- Full width door in rear permits sieves to be changed with minimum of time and effort.
- Heavy galvanized sheet-steel construction. Water- and weather-tight decks.
- The Kay-Gee weigher elevator is of belt and bucket construction.

Tourists Pour Into Alberta As Record Year is Forseen

By RAYMOND ARGYLE

Alberta's tourist business in July of this year reached an all-time high, according to word from the provincial government's Tourist Travel Bureau.

Reports from border points—where thousands of Americans are floding in for their long-awaited Canadian holidays—show a 15 per cent increase in the number of cars entering Canada.

A similar increase prevails throughout the entire tourist industry. With travel up 15 per cent over 1949 (and that was 33 per cent up over 1948), Alberta stands to make about $30 millions out of tourism this year.

Dan C. Campbell, director of the Tourist Travel Bureau, aded a side-light to the tourist business when he descibed to this newspaper the effect the Korean war has had on travel.

"With Americans," he said. "it has resulted in some speeding up their vacations and some cutting them out entirely. The businessmen are staying home, waiting to see what effect the war will have on prices asked by manufacturers, whereas the manufacturerers are hurrying up their vacations to get them over with before anything serious arises."

The Long Trip

For a lot of people, Mr. Campbell asserted, 1950 seems to be the year of the long trip. Large numbers of professional people executives and technicians, who have been waiting since before the war for a real vacation this year are taking it.

Mr. Campbell also mentioned that people are having a hard time making up their minds as to where they wish to go, citing the instance of one American family which didn't decide until their trip was actually underway, and they were in their car on the highway.

Holy Year has apparently cut down travel in North America to some extent, although it is going to be a record-breaking year for the Canadian tourist business.

A great number of people that would normally be taking long cross country trips have gone to Rome for the Holy Year fesivities.

Brings in Money

Tourism, Mr. Campbell added, is Canada's second largest source of American dollars. Only newprint brings in more foreign currency.

This year about $280 millions will be spent in this country by tourists, with between $25 and $30 millions being spent in Alberta.

"Moreover," Mr. Campbell added, "that's clear money. The people that spend it don't take anything out of the country except a few souvenirs, and they don't compete in the employment and business picture.

Of the $25 million being spent in the foothills province this year, about $14 million will end up in the hands of the farmers, as food and accomoda tions take up a big majority of the tourist's money

The tourist purchase of Alberta food—to the tune of $14 millions worth—is an important element in farm prosperity.

J. F. Farley Named New B-A Manager

British American Oil has announced the appointment of J. K. Farley as manager of its Alberta division, succeeding the late J. A. Hutton. Born in Wetaskiwin, Alberta, and educated in Lloydminster, Mr. Farley joined B-A in 1928 at Saskatoon. He received several promotions within the marketing department and in 1938 became service station superintendent for Edmonton. After more than three years in the R.C.A.F., he rejoined the company in 1945 as a salesman for Calgary. The next year he was named divisional sales manager for Saskatchewan and he held this position at the time of his new appointment. Mr. Farley's headquarters are in Calgary.

Coastal Dwellers

Most Eskimos are coastal dwellers, btaining much of their food and clothing from sea mammals.

Alberta Men Enlist in Forces

As Canada steps up her military program to be ready 'just in case,' recruiting centres in Alberta have been instructed to go all-out to obtain their share of the needed 8,000 additional volunteers. This picture, taken at the Edmonton RCAF recruiting office, shows two men, Thomas Charchuk, 20, of Ranfurly and Sidney Jones, 20, of Forestburg, filling in application forms. With them is Flt. Lt. A. Laflamme, recruiting officer.

Industrial Boom Continues As Production Increases

Alberta's industrial status is continuing to look rosy, as late reports show steady gains in production, trade and exports over 1949.

Petroleum production increased 32 per cent over April last year according to figures just released by the department of Industries and Labor of which Hon. Dr. J. L.Robinson is minister.

New motor vehicles sales showed an overall rise over April 1949, with an increase of 54 per cent from 7,364 to 11,320.

Building permits in four cities took a jump of 10 per cent from $13,820,889 in April last year to $15,261,742 this year.

Tourist trade increased four per cent in the month and visitors to the national parks increased eight per cent.

Exports of cattle, horses, sheep, lambs and hogs increased, though the return from the sale of hogs was down in value owing to lower prices.

Other commodities showing an increase were wheat and buter.

A Dying Industry

Recent laments from spokesmen of the coal mining industry in Alberta would indicate that the days of coal mining are numbered in Alberta, despite the large deposits of that fuel in the foothills province.

Spokesmen saw that market prospects are becoming increasingly bleak, what with competition from eastern coal, and local sources of natural gas and oil.

Coupled with this are the hazardous elements involved in coal mining, typified by the recent multi-tragedy at Mountain Park. There, the death of several miners are set in motion a chain reaction that may soon mean a deserted town.

In the Crowsnest Pass, in the gaunt, dirty coal mines towns, in the Drumheller fields, down the Coalbranch, and in the small mines all over the province, miners and owners alike are watching the future not a bit too sure of what will come.

Population Mounting

Canada's population rose 110,000 in the six-month period from January 1st, 1950, to July 1st, to reach 13,850,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimated last week.

Obviously, at this birth and immigration rate, it will be but a matter of months before Canada tops the fourteen million mark.

Visionaries behold the day when Canada, already an industrial, agricultural and economic power, will be a political power by virtue of a population in some semblance of proportion to her land mass. This, however, is a subject for the economists to debate. Will Canada ever be that populous and can the country's natural resources tolerate such a population?

Visionaries and economists aside we believe in a policy of selective immigration into Canada of both agricultural and industrial workers, limiting in numbers to what from time to time appears to be the absorptive capacity of the country, and by practical considerations of transport and establishment. This is a sensible policy.

Scriptural Meditations

"If we regard iniquity in our hearts, if we cling to any known sin, the Lord will not hear us; but the prayer of the penitent, contrite soul is always accepted. When all known wrongs are righted, we may believe that God will answer our petitions. Our own merit will never commend us to the favor of God; it is the worthiness of Jesus that will save us, His blood that will cleanse us; yet we have a work to do in complying with the conditions of acceptance.

Another element of prevailing prayer is faith. "He that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." Heb. 11:6. Do we take Him at His word?"

—Steps to Christ.

The Lighter Side

Toujours La Politesse

An angler, who had been trying to hook something for the last six hours, was sitting gloomily at his task, when a mother and her small son came along.

"Oh," cried the youngster, "do let me see you catch a fish!"

Addressing the angler the mother said severely: "Now, don't you catch a fish for him until he says "Please!"

The Monkey Trial

By T. W. PUE

Last week Canadians paid tribute to a great Liberal, the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who was singularly successful in his political life. He won six national elections.

William Jennings Bryan, who died twenty-five years ago this month was a great Liberal, as was Mackenzie King, but unlike the late Prime Minister was singularly unsuccessful. In his contests for the U.S. Presidency, he not only campaigned for election on purely political grounds but had the idea that eternal prosperity would be sure if only silver was made the basis of monetary value instead of gold—a theory that fitted in well with the ideas of the silver producing states. To the day of his death, he hadn't won even one election, but he had captured the imagination of the world by his participation in what has become known to us as the "Monkey Trial." Tennesseans, such as Mrs. J. L. Cody of Mayerthorpe, will perhaps remember these events better than I, but I find it refreshing to review them now, 25 years later.

T. W Pue

When every girl of marriageable age was pleased to be called a flapper, and the automobile and post-war prosperity brought many people to think that God and the Bible were too old-fashioned for moderns of a quarter of a century ago, William Jennings Bryan, "The Great Commoner," delivered a lecture at the State Capitol, in Nashville, Tennessee. The date was January 29, 1925, and his discourse prompted the passing of the famous "Anti-Evolution" bill, which became a state law in March, 1925.

The law stated "it shall be unlawful for any teacher in any school supported by state funds or public schools to teach any theory that denies the story of the divine creation of man as taught in the Christian Bible." It was, of course, unlawful to teach that man came from monkeys. The trial, therefore, centred around whether God or monkeys should receive due credit for man's creation.

John T. Scopes, Teacher

Two months later, two young lawyers sat in a Dayton, Tennessee drug store, sipping soft drinks and discussing the new law. With them, was the local high school science teacher, John T. Scopes. It soon developed that Mr. Scopes was using in his classes a textbook that supported the theory of evolution. Facetiously, at first, they accused him of breaking the law. Then more seriously, the decision was reached that Dayton should be the place to try the test case, since the American Civil Rights Union had offered to finance such a case under the new Tennessee law, and a telephone call gave a Nashville paper the "scoop" on the story which soon was headline news the world over.

Clarence Darrow, Atheist Defender

A preliminary hearing bound the case over to the Circuit Court convening in July. The Chicago newspapers arranged for Clarence Darrow, famous criminal lawyer, and an agnostic, to support the defense. A group of Christians of various denominations in Memphis enlisted the services of William Jennings Bryan for the prosecution.

On July 10, 1925, court convened, and thus began what was to be perhaps the most famous trial in the history of the American Bar. People came from all over the nation. The courtroom was crowded beyond capacity; and fearing for the safety of the overtaxed building, the proceedings were adjourned to the court house lawn. For eight days the battle raged. In the course of events, Bryan gave a masterly address defending the right of the people through their Legislature to protect their children in the public schools against destruction of their faith.

Subsequently, Darrow was sarcastic to the judge and was cited for contempt of court. His bond was fixed at $5,000 and arrangement made for bail. He then made a moving apology, and the court, using Christian principles, forgave him. On the closing day, July 21, a verdict of guilty was rendered by the jury, and Scopes was fined $100. Bryan made a short closing speech, and Darrow characterized the trial as comparable to the Puritan witchcraft cases.

Two days later, on July 23, 1925, while resting at the home in Dayton, where he was staying, Mr. Bryan ". . . was not, for God took him." Without warning, sickness or pain he slipped away. Forever gone were the campaigns for the presidency. No longer would he argue the case for silver monetization. The "Monkey Trials" were gone but so was the Great Commoner.

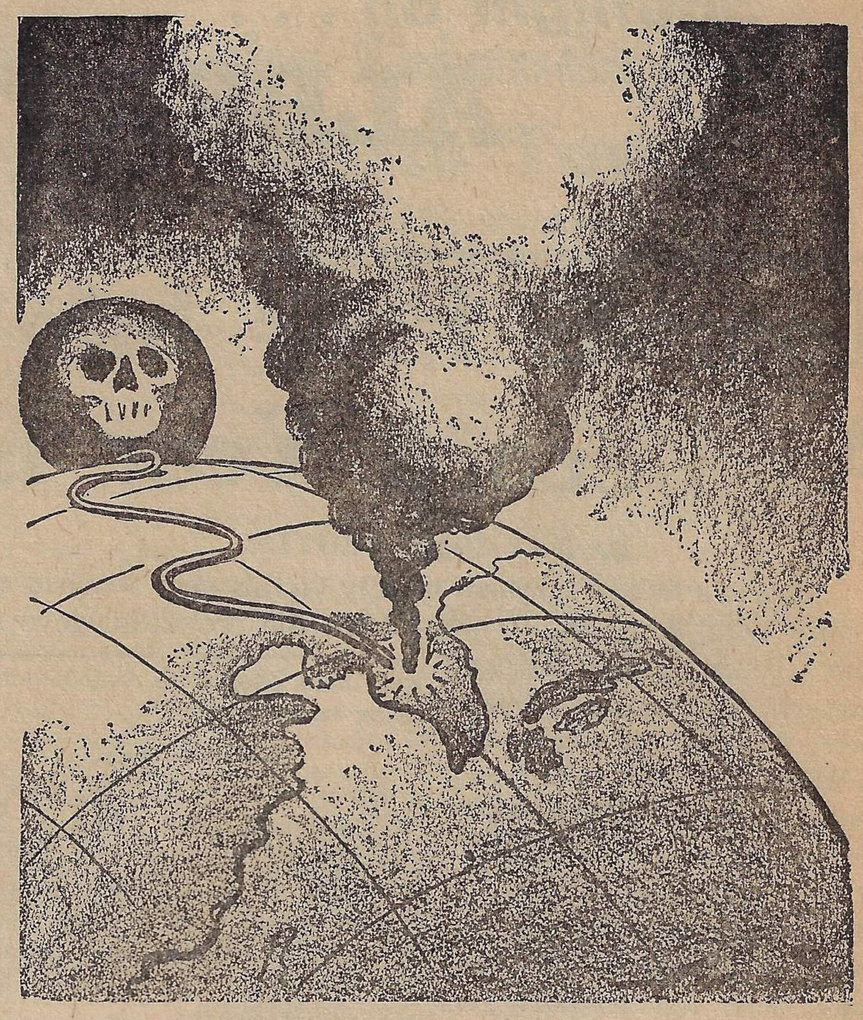

Thanks to Mr. Bryan, and a suggestion made by him before his death, American youth can still receive a formal college education without being committed to schools of atheism and "man came from year liberal arts course of study.

After his untimely death, a newspaper reporter of the trial suggested that a university be built as his enduring memorial. The proposal at once caught the popular fancy, and the plans were soon under way. And today, on Bryan Hill, stands a memorial to the great commoner who fought to the death for "the faith which was once delivered unto the saints."

William Jennings Bryan University takes a positive stand upon the Bible, both the Old and the New Testaments, as the final and supreme authority in faith and life, "inspired of God, and inerrant in the original writings." Its truths are emphasized without apology in the class rooms, and are made the center of instruction throughout the entire four-year liberal arts course of study.

And so, twenty-five years after his spectacular "Monkey Trial," the spirit of a great man, a failure in politics, but a success in the things in which he most surely believed, lives on in the hills of Tennissee.

COMMENT FROM THE PRESS

18-Year-Olds Should Get Breaks

Lethbridge Herald

Out of Calgary comes the following news report:

CALGARY, June 30. (CP).—Sentenced to 10 years in penitentiary for assault and robbery of a Chinese grocer, 18-year-old John McKay, no fixed adress, lost consciousness in police court yesterday and was carried to cells by two jailers.

The youth was convicted on Wednesday of robbing Louie Wah of about $80.

McKay looked stunned when he heard the sentence and keeled over unconscious in the prisoner's dock.

This crime may of course have been far more serious than the reading of the above dispatch would indicate, but nevertheless the punishment seems a trifle steep when you consider that the youngster involved is a mere 18 years of age. What possible good 10 years in prison will do him is beyond us. Chances are—especially if he believes the punishment unfair—he will come out of prison as great a menace to society as he was when he commited this crime.

If this boy deserves 10 years for the crime he committed, then surely some of our more prominent and mature citizens who knowingly break Foreign Exchange Board regulations or who fail to pay their income taxes should receive more than mere fines, or at worst a short jail sentence. And surely men, like one in Lethbridge recently, who also rob with violence should get more than four years in the penitentiary.

If 10 years is to be the sentence for criminals who rob with violence, then let it be 10 years for everyone. But not 10 years for a boy who is legally a child and only four years for a full-grown man.

Sometimes we think our judges are given to much leeway when it comes to deciding what punishment should be meted out to criminals. If breaks are to be given, they should be given to the 18-year-old offenders, not to mature men.

Letters to the Editor

Shame on Parents

Dear Editor— We have a Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and notwithstanding all that's been writen and said some people are still wickedly stupid enough to be mean and cruel to dumb animals.

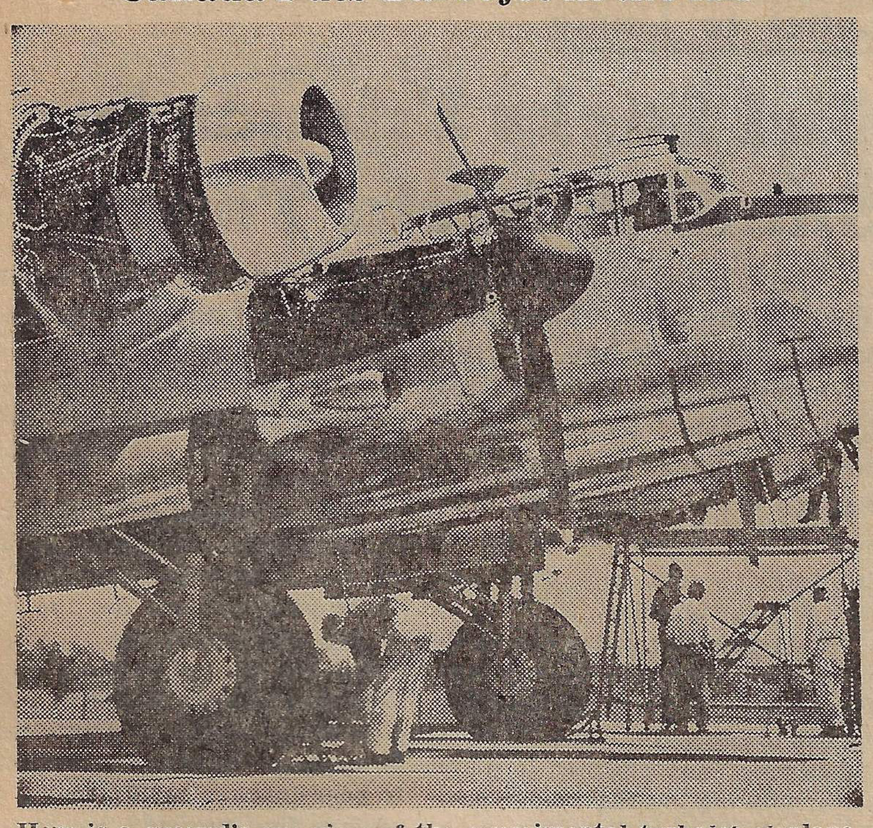

We also need a Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children I am thinking particularly of abusive treatment given babies and young children by irresponsible young mothers. Parents who are continually slapping and hiting children in public places only prove to everyone how much of a failure they themselves are. Also there is mental cruelty.

A short time ago I met couple on the train who had a little boy and an older sister. He kept hitting his sister and every time she tried to defend herself she was sharply reprimanded by her parents. This girl obviously lives a miserable life and her parents should be thouroughly ashamed of themselves.

I would appeal to every parent to treat children with the same respect they'd treat strangers. These people were nice enough to the conductor but disgraceful in their lack of courtesy to their 10-year old daughter. Why don't educated people put some heart into this business of raising children?

Northern Parish Priest Named Vicar General

Marking the great occasion of the honor bestowed upon Parish Priest Rev. Fr. Loranger, now Monseigneur Loranger Vicar General of the Diocese of St. Paul. The ladies of St. Anne, the C.Y.O. and the parishers gave a farewell reception in the Community hall at Plamondon recently. About four hundred attended, also Rev. Fr. McGrane, V.F., Rev. Fr. Menard, Rev. Fr. Ouelette, Rev. Fr. Dubuc, Rev. Fr. Pelletier, Rev. Fr. McGrane, V.F. Dean of Lac la Biche Deanery gave the opening congratulatory address.

Mr. G. Godel, district agriculturist, expressed his regrets that Msgr. would not be in his district as he had always been a leader in the agricultural undertakings to help his people understand the more scientific problems.

Mrs. Octave Chevegney composed and read the farewell address expressing the congratulations of all the parish and also the sorrow felt by the people in losing the parish priest.

Fr. Loranger had been a parish priest in Plamondon for the last eighteen years. Mr. Martin Schaub as one of the church trustees presented a purse on behalf of the parish and Milford Plamondon on behalf of the school pupils.

Rev. Fr. Menard also gave a farewell address. In response Msgr. Loranger expressed his deepest regrets in leaving Plamondon, also his sincere thanks to all the parishioners for all their help and consideration during his years here.

Also to all whom had helped in any way to make this evening such a happy one in memory of his last Sunday in Plamondon.

Mrs. Octave Chevegney had charge of the musical program consisting of songs and music by the young people of the parish.

The ladies of St. Anne arranged the lunch, two tables being in front of the hall for the priest and one for the servers decorated in lace covers and bouquets of lilac and white tapers. Several ladies of the parish assisted by young ladies of the C.Y.O. served the lunch.

Out-of-town visitors included Mr. and Mrs. Ameda Plamondon and Julius Plamondon, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Belanger of Trail, B.C., Mr. and Mrs. G. Godel and daughter and friends of Athabasca, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Colcy of Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Piquette of Venice and many old parishioners from here that now reside in outlying districts. Rev. Fr. Loranger will be now in charge of Lafond parish.

The occasion was a double farewell as Rev. Fr. Warczak, D.D., who has been assistant to Fr. Loranger for the past few weeks, also has left to take over the parish at Villeneuve.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON:

David, the Shepherd King Was Unusual Bible Hero

Continuing our study of outstanding personalities in the Old Testament, we come to a consideration of the many-sided hero of the Israelities — David, the Shepherd King.

Because there was no member of the house of Saul who could succeed to the throne and because God and the prophet Samuel both had their eyes on the shepherd boy of Bethlehem as the next leader of the nation, David was anointed King over Israel. The use of the word "shepherd" in II Samuel 5: 1-5, is interesting David, who had spent his boyhood watching sheep, now becomes ruler over the Israelites and becomes their "shepherd," —one who tenderly looks after and cares for his human "sheep."

The rise of the shepherd boy to King of Israel is paralleled by the rise of the city of Jerusalem. Captured by the armies of Israel, Jerusalem, from that time on, became the physical centre of the Jewish nation. Located on a rocky ridge running down through central Palestine, it was the natural site for Solomon's Temple, which was constructed by David's son, after David's death.

Perhaps the most outstanding characteristics of David's nature was his loyalty to God. A reading of the life of this man reveals that he was human, he fell often into sin and error like the rest of us—but he was always heartbroken at the thought of his sin and was always penitent and ready to confess and atone.

Someone asked Dwight L. Moody some years ago, "Don't you think David fell as low as King Saul," to which Mr. Moody replied: "Certainly he did: He fell lower, because God has lifted him up higher. The difference is that when Saul fell, there was no sign of repentance, but when David fell, a wail went up from his broken heart, and there was true repentance." Saul collapsed as a king because earlier he had collapsed spiritually.

David accomplished many things, as king, to make Israel great as a nation. He won great battles and he founded a dynasty. But, above all, he restored to Israel the worship of God. He had the Ark brought back from its hiding place and even from captivity in the hands of the Philistines, and set it up in Jerusalem, at the centre of his new state. He put God first.

While many do not agree, it is just as necessary for the nations of the world today to restore the true worship of God to its rightful place as it was for old Israel and Judah to do it. General Eisenhower, some months after the end of World aWr II, in speaking to a great conference of church leaders, declared: "Gentlemen, we must either find a spiritual solution to the terrible problems of our world, or we will all go up together in one great cloud of atomic dust."

David's consciousness of the loving care of God was a great influence on his people. It becomes their greatest bulwark of strength and was the foundation on which their whole national life rested. David was never too busy to worship, to pray, to attend the services of worship wtih his people. Wth him, God came first. While he was busy building a great nation, he was never so absorbed by this great task that he forgot God. What a lesson this is for our leaders today. If we are too busy at our tasks that we have no time for God, we are just too, too busy. You haven't time for God, you say, You'd better look over your schedule. Into what are you pouring your time and your energies. Always remember, eternity is a long, long time.

Solution To This Week's Puzzle

LION STALKS TOWN STREETS

RYCROFT.— A roaring, 750-pound African lion, which stalked the streets of this Peace River town for more than an hour, was killed last week by a fusilade of bullets.

Owner A. J. Cody of Edmonton consented to it being shot—"before someone gets mangled"—after conceding the animal could three lions in Mr. Cody's touring carnival, it escaped from its cage not be recaptured. Biggest of early in the morning, passing within 15 feet of three sleeping carnival hands and made its way down town.

Most of the town's 300 residents who were awakened by the roar of the king of beasts watched the jungle animal from behind locked doors.

During its period of freedom the only damage it caused was to rip a pile of cardboard containers to shreds.

After refusing to re-enter its cage, baited with fresh meat, the snarling lion was shot by town residents Herb Cobb and Jerry Dika and R.C.M.P. Constable O. Poll.

Poll fired three shots at 20 feet from his service revolver but the fatal bullet was believed fired by Dika who lodged a shot in the lion's brain. The slain lion was given to Dika as a trophy. He said he will skin and mount it.

Short Supply Causes High Meat Prices

High meat prices are caused largely by short supply, Colin Cambell, of Gainers' Ltd .,and past president of the Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce told Edmonton Kiwanians at their luncheon meeting Tuesday.

Mr. Campbell outlined cost and profit to farmers, packing plants and butchers and stated that none of these meat handlers was making more than a fair profit. He declared that the real move towards lower meat prices lay in an increased supply.

BOOK BANNED AGAIN

BOSTON.— The novel 'God's Little Acre,' by Erskine Caldwell, was banned in Massachusetts this week by a full bench of the state supreme court which said it was obscene.

The ruling overturned a previous decision that it was not obscene.

Letter to Louisa

Girl Lacks Friends In Small Alberta Town

Dear Louisa—I am a girl of 15 who does not know many nice girls or boys. The ones I do know do not ask me to go out with them or have anything to do with me.

I have been told that I am too quiet and bashful for the boys to talk to me. I know a couple of nice boys but am not allowed to go out with them. Please tell me how I can learn to talk with girls and boys without blushing.

Would you also tell me how to make acquaintances with boys, and about what age can a girl start going out to dances? Miss L. M.

Answer—Your problem is quite a common one among young people who live in small towns or on farms.

A complex such as this gives rise to the belief among many young people that there is actually something wrong with them, whereas actually there is nothing of the sort.

The only thing for you to do is to go ahead and make conversation with young people of your age—there is no other solution to your ploblem.

As for when you can start going out to dances, I do not think 16 is too young for the occasional date.

Just be your natural self, do not worry about your bashfulness, and I am sure you will make many fine acquaintances before you are much older. —Louisa.

Husband's Health

Dear Louisa.—I wonder if you can help me with my problem. My husband says he is well but in the evening he eats his supper at 6 p.m. and goes to bed at 9 and in about two hours he begins to sweat so much that the sheets and pillow cases are real wet.

I have told him to go and see a doctor but he won't. I wonder if his hard breathing is caused by heavy smoking?

I always ask him if he feels any pains at night and he says only when he is lying on his back. He says he sometimes feels as if something is choking him. Mrs. R. B.

Answer—The only thing I can suggest to you, madam, is that it is imperative for your husband to see his doctor immediately.

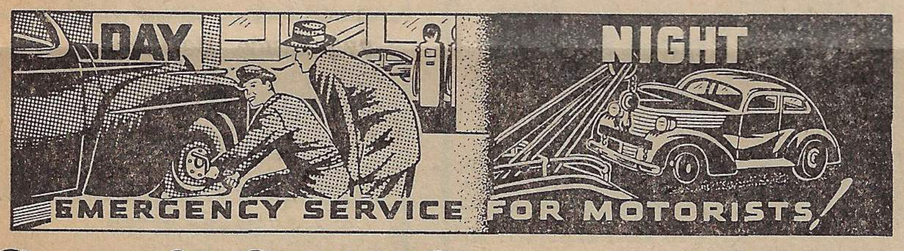

Possibly his condition is nothing really serious, and then again perhaps it is. But you will never know until a doctor has been consulted, and until then you will worry about his condition, not knowing what it is caused by.

Men are usually difficult to reason with when a doctor is concerned, but it is important that you make your husband see the light of day, and consult one.

But one word of caution—do not urge that he see a doctor in a nagging tone, because no man likes to be nagged. Instead, show that it is your interest in his health and welfare that prompts you to urge him seeing his doctor. —Louisa.

Crop Prospects Improving As Conditions Now Ideal

Growing conditions in Alberta were almost ideal during the past week and crops generally made satisfactory progress.

The overall condition of crops was maintained during the week with those in central and southern region showing a minor improvement and those in northern regions declining slightly. While the general condition of Alberta's crop may be a little below normal for this time of year, it is far ahead of last year. The crop figure now stands at 77 as compared with 60 last year.

Best crops are in prospect in east-central Alberta running from Stettler to Consort on the south and Vermilion and Lloydminster on the north, and in the extreme south-western corner of the province. The sections with the poorestt prospects are north and northeast from Edmonton, in particular, and from Medicine Hat to Hanna along the eastern border.

GREEN ACRES

By S. W. PETTEM

Raspberry Diseases

Two common ailments of raspberries are mosaic and leaf curl. These are both virus diseases and knowledge of control is limited. When a plant is infected with mosaic the leaves turn light green, becomes mottled with yellow, turn brown and die. If infected with leaf curl the leaves turn dark green, then become wrinkled and curled. The only only treatment is the removal and burning of diseased plants.

Check Harvest Machines Early

Combines and swathers have many fast moving parts, in which there is considerable wear in a harvest season. Now is the time to check harvesting machinery and order needed repairs so as to avoid costly field delays.

Bees Need More Room

Empty combs should be made available to the bees at this season of the year to provide sufficient room to accommodate the nectar the bees may gather. Providing extra supers will also help to prevent swarming. It is also advisable to cage the queen at this time of the year.

Harvest Help

Present crop conditions indicate that there will be an increased need for harvest help this fall. Eastern harvesters will likely be seeking work and will be placed in areas where needed by the employment offices. Inform this office early as to the number of men you will require for harvest and efforts will be made to secure men. Men will be placed in order of application.

Haying

Haying operations are now well under way. Both grasses and legumes should be cut when in the bloom in order to make the best feed. Farmers are missing a good bet if they do not take advantage of the luxuriant growth along the roadsides this year.

GRAIN PLANTS ARE POPULAR

F. F. Parkinson, supervisor of projects, Alberta department of agriculture, reports that the services provided by the four municipal seed cleaning plants in operation in Alberta during the past season have met with splendid response from farmers of the surrounding districts. These plants, which were built under a policy of provincial and municipal assistance, are located at Camrose, Westlock, Wetaskiwin and Morinville. The Camrose plant began operation in February of last year, the Westlock plant in November, and the other two last January.

As well as cleaning grain for farmers, these plants act as distributing centres for good seed, whether grown locally or shipped in from outside. In spite of the short season's run of the three new plants ,a total of over 450,000 bushels of seed grain was cleaned for close to 2,000 farmers.

Approximately 50 carloads of seed were brought in, cleaned, and distributed to farmers who were short of seed as a result of last year's poor crops. Over 50 per cent of the grain cleaned was treated at the plants for smut control with Ceresan M slurry treatment. The plants are equipped with up-to-date, efficient cleaning and treating equipment, and are inspected by both dominion and provincial ation.

authorities to ensure proper oper-

With this set-up available, says the supervisor, no farmer in the districts of Camrose, Westlock, Wetaskiwin or Morinville has any excuse for sowing anything but good clean seed.

Nation Mourns Passing Of Mackenzie King, Statesman

Symbolic of the respect held by Canadians for the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King, the streets of Ottawa Wednesday were lined with 50,000 citizens as the body of the 75-year-old statesman was borne in a state funeral procession from Parliament Hill.

Death of Mr. King, five times elected to the highest political office in this country, was felt by the entire nation.

The shock was not as great as it would have been if he was still Prime Minister, but when news came last Saturday evening, thoughts of all Canadians turned to his career.

He died at his summer home of Kingsmere, in the rolling Quebec hills across the river from Ottawa, after being unconscious for nearly 48 hours following an acute attack of pneumonia.

He had been failing as the result of a long-standing cardiovascular ailment, but up until almost the end, his doctors thought he would pull through.

That long - standing ailment prompted him to give up the Liberal party leadership August 7, 1948, 29 years after he had assumed it. No other party leader in a British Commonwealth country has exceeded that record.

Mr. King served as prime minister 21 years, five months and five days—also a Commonwealth record.

After resigning his leadership, Mr. King retained his seat in the House of Commons as representative of the small Quebec constituency of Glengary until Parliament was dissolved on April 30, 1949, prior to the last eelection.

Mr. King's death ended the self-imposed task of writing his memoirs for the public archives.

Mr. King—who never married—is survived by only one relative, a sister, Mrs. H. N. Lay of Barrie, Ontario.

In a public career of nearly 50 years, Mr. King left an imprint on Canadian life that only history will fully reveal. During the years of his leadership, Canada grew from a Dominion to a leading world power, and along with that national growth came an era of social legislation unparalleled elsewhere in the world.

When King and the Liberal party went back to Ottawa in 1935, the wheels were set in motion of an extensive social welfare program that created unemployment insurance, family allowances, veteran gratuities, and other measures of wide scope.

Mr. King's last public appearance was in mid-June during the Imperial press conference of the Empire Press Union which brought to Ottawa newspaper publishers from all parts of the Commonwealth.

Mr. King, who started out in life as a social worker, later newspaperman, and then statesman, started his government career in 1900 when he was appointed deputy minister of labor. In 1908 he was elected to the Comons as member for the Ontario constituency of Waterloo North.

In 1909 Mr. King was appointed to the cabinet as Minister of Labor, and in 1919 succeeded Sir Wilfrid Laurier as leader of the Liberal party at a national convention.

He started his first term as prime minister in 1921, and in 1930 his party was defeated, with Mr. King going to the opposition benches for five years.

He came back to Otawa as prime minister after the 1935 general election, successfully leading the party in the new elections in 1940 and 1945.

During the war years he conferred iwth Roosevelt and Churchill on several occasions, and in 1945 headed the Canadian delegation to the San Francisco conference which laid the groundwork for the United Nations.

In 1946 Mr. King led the Canadian delegation to the Paris Peace Conference where the treaties of peace were drawn up with Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania and Finland.

In 1948 he returned to French Canada, personified in Louis St. Laurent, the mantle of leadership he had received from Laurier.

Body of Mr. King was interred in a family plot at Toronto on Thursday.

MACKENZIE KING, Canada's long-time Prime Minister, for whom funeral services were held in Ottawa Wednesday, July 26. 50,000 people lined the streets of Ottawa for the procession. He was buried in Toronto next day. So ended an era.

Redwater Festival To Become Annual Event

The big two-day festival last week, which drew thousands to Redwater—the town that's grown from 300 to 3,000 in two hectic years of oil discovery—was such a success that the event is going to be an annual affair. These three pictures show some of the activities at the festival. At top is part of the mile long parade that started the celebration. Centre are officials who presided at the event, left to right, Walter Malowaney, village councillor; George Brown, in charge of sports; Ald. Hanna, representing Edmonton; Mayor Len Walker of Redwater, and Charles Barnes, president of the Redwater Board of Trade. Below is the Queen of Redwater and her two ladies-in-waiting. In centre is Queen Mary Barabash, at left Mary Boychuk, and at right is Patricia Wintoniak.

There's More Money for You in Separating
The De Laval Way

Research figures show average losses of 29 lbs. of butterfat per cow per year with water dilutor methods; 35 lbs. with hand skimming; and only 0.96 lbs, with a good centrifugal separator.

Multiply these figures by the number of cows you milk — and see how a new, clean-skimming, easy-to-clean De Laval Separator would be a wise and profitable investment for you. A size and style for every need and purse. Easy payments.

Needlecraft News by Pauline Roy

CHILDREN'S and infants' clothes are fun to make. The tiny seams can be sewed up so quickly that before you know it, you're finished. The real fun begins when you start adding dainty trimming touches. You can use your ingenuity in achieving original effects. Use the types of trimmings you most like, and place them where you think they look the prettiest.

Embroidered and ruffled edgings make crisp trimmings for children's garments. When applying a ruffled edge, place right side of edging down on the right side of the edge to which it is to be joined. Place a bias facing strip of the material or of bias tape on the top of the ruffle, and then baste and stitch the three layers together. Crease back the seam on the garment, and then turn under the raw edge of the facing strip and hem it down.

Bands used as trimming are an excellent means of introducing contrast, either of color, pattern or texture. You can cut bias pieces from the fabric you are using, but for ease and time-saving you can use bias fold tape very effectively. This tape has elasticity for going around necklines. Single fold bias trim should be pinned where it is to be used for trimming, then basted 1/8 from each folded edge. Miter the tape wherever there is a square corner. Stitch close to the folded edges. Remove basting and press on the wrong side.

Rows of different colored rick rack will brighten up many children's outfits. Interesting braid can be made by twisting two pieces of rick rack of the same size but different colors together. For a different trim effect try tacking several rows of rick rack together point-to-point for a beautiful lacy trim in monotone or multicolor.

Yes, kiddies' clothes leave lots of scope for the imagination whether they be summer, fall or winter garments. The perky pleated skirt and stole worn by the little miss in the picture is just one example of the wonderful "back-to-school" plaids which are being shown for fall 1950. Of recent years, tartans have become the No. 1 fabric for every youngster from kindergarten to college and this year is no exception.

To have instructions (in sizes 2 to 6) for this PLEATED SKIRT AND STOLE just write to the Needlework Department of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and request Leaflet No. SS-24.

The MASSEY-HARRIS No. 11 SIDE RAKE
Available for Use With Either Tractor or Horse Hitch
Adjustable cylinder action to suit all kinds and conditions of hay and other crops handled by a side rake is a feature of the Massey-Harris No. 11. An ingenious eccentric device, adjusted by a convenient hand crank, controls the angle and stroke of the teeth engaging the crop. It is possible with this device to set quickly and easily the action of the cylinder to handle light, medium or heavy crops.
This side rake has four bars in the cylinder—the additional bar over previous models offsets the speed-up in travel incidental to tractor farming without increasing cylinder speed. Teeth have four coils each and are attached by means of a bolt and a malleable bracket. For exceptional performance and dependability buy Massey-Harris.
